66% of the area of Castilla y León consists of steppes, high moors and peneplains. In this extensive territory, agriculture and stockbreeding play a vital role in the maintenance of the social and economic fabric of rural zones. The Local Action Groups of EU Initiatives LEADER+ and PRODERCAL wish to demonstrate the role that the primary sector and its assets develop in the scope of territory management, species conservation, and as environment enhancers.

Environmental education, sensitizing agriculturists and cattle raisers, training of birdwatching guides and the creation of birding routes are other goals set by this project, so that higher levels of environmental awareness can be achieved in this territory.

The promotion, in rural areas, of a dynamics that is receptive to an environment respectful tourism, as well as conservation actions for protected species, are measures that will contribute to make nature lovers who visit us not to leave disappointed.
